1 He has a fever, so he got an ice pack.

2 It is awkward to move around with the ice pack.

3 The solution is the traveller's ice pack.

4 With the traveler's ice pack, he can now run around.

5 He can now go back to work.

The illustration shows a sequence of five panels. Panel 1: A person with a fever is shown with a thermometer and a sweat drop. Panel 2: The person is carrying a large, heavy-looking ice pack on their back while walking. Panel 3: The person is shown running quickly with the ice pack on their back. Panel 4: The person is shown working at a desk with the ice pack still on their back. Panel 5: The person is shown working again, looking relieved.
